THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

FANCY DRESS BALL AT THE CLOVER

Tea at Calumet Place During Saturday's Blizzard-Other Hospitalities -Personal Notes.

Mrs. Richardson Clover's fancy dress ball Saturday afternoon was a glimpse of fairyland, but one peopled with young folks who may achieve prominence in unknown fields and an audience of grownups who are already famous in society and officialdom. It was a beautiful party, from every standpoint. The hostess has since taking possession of her present home been identifled in the juvenile mind with these gatherings, and it was not to disappoint the little friends of her two daughters that it was planned along even more elaborate lines than usual. The collation was served in the supper room below stairs. In the drawing room the tower window recess was transformed into a fairy glen, in which a huge red-eyed dragon guarded till the proper moment heaps of presents. Back of the monster was a tangle of vines, in which glowed numbers of electric sparks in col-ored shades. The ceiling of the eastern room was canopled with vines and Japan-ese lanterns with electric lights within, and the dining room adjoining had garlands of varied-colored roses and laurel looped from the center chandeller and making a roof of bloom. Mrs. Clover's two pretty young daughters—Eudora as Diana, in a green satin costume, with a leopard skin over her shoulder and a pretty equipment of bow and arrows, and Beatrice as a "cock-aand arrows, and Beatrice as a "cock-atoo," white and yellow feathers, with the bird's head crowning her own-received with their mother, giving the heartlest welcome to their own friends and the most graceful courtesies to their elders. Both of the costumes of these interesting children, who bid fair to be great beauties,

Miss Ruth W. Pruyn of Albany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Pruyn, is a guest at the White House. Miss Katherine Brice of New York is visiting at the British embassy. A dance down at the barracks tonight, Miss Hoban's dance tomorrow night, the Bachelors' Wednesday and the Small and Early Friday night seem to be the events gayest in anticipation this week. The reception by Senator and Mrs. Hanna at the Arlington Friday night will suggest an as-sembly ball, so that neither large nor small affairs are lacking.

One of the most interesting occasions for the young people this winter was the tea Saturday, given by Major and Mrs. Tucker to meet their guests, Miss Wilson and Miss Wilder. Calumet place made a most attractive contrast, with its flower-decked and softly lighted rooms, to the unpleasant weather conditions prevailing outside, and made the large gathering all the more delightful.

The reception tendered by Mrs. George H. La Fetra and other ladies of La Fetra's Hotel Friday evening was in every sense a success, notwithstanding the inclement weather, about 200 being present. The parlors were handsomely decorated with palms, cut flowers and brilliantly shaded lamps. The tea room was artistically done paims, cut howers and brilliantly shaded lamps. The tea room was artistically done in pink ribbons, roses, asparagus vine and smilax. Those receiving besides Mrs. La Fetra were her guest, Mrs. B. H. Badley of Lucknow, India; Mrs. J. Mrs. Roswell Bishop, Mrs. Washington Gardner and Mrs. Harry Parker will receive tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at 1303 Clifton street. A pleasant surprise party was tendered Mr. Henry Weber last Thursday night, the occasion being the twelfth anniversary of his wedding. An appropriate speech was made by Mr. J. Breely, who presented Mr. and Mrs. Weber with a magnificent vase in behalf of the Rebew Orchestra. Many interesting games were played and at a late hour the guests partook of a repast, after which a Virginia reel was en-joyed, followed by a cakewalk. Prizes were joyed, followed by a cakewalk. Prizes were captured by Mr. Breely and Miss H. Chester. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Weber, the Misses Weber, Conrade, H. Chester, M. Chester, V. Raymond, M. the inquest.

The night of January 19 the girl and a friend named Laura Johnson were together, and about 11 o'clock they met Joseph Reeder in a lunch room at 2d and G streets northwest. He accompanied them to Naylor's alley and Freeman came out the back gate and met them.

Witnesses testified that he struck Mary and knocked her down. Then he picked her up and dragged her inside the gate. Mary Wells, in her dying statement, alleged that Freeman renewed the attack when their room was reached, and that he kicked her on her side. Two days after the injury is alleged to have been infileted Dr. Roman examined the injured girl, and had her sent to the hospital. When she reached there Dr. Balloch found that her spicen had been received and sent account of the spicen had been received and that her spicen had been received the survey of the sent to the spicen had been received and that her spicen had been received the sent to the sent to the spicen had been received to the spicen had been received to the spicen had been received the sent to the spicen had been received the spicen to the spicen had been received the spicen had been received the spicen to the spicen t had her sent to the hospital. When she reached there Dr. Balloch found that her spleen had been ruptured, and an opera-tion was performed. Blood poisoning and pneumonia followed. Detective Muller and Precinct Detective Evans of the second precinct heard the ante-mortem statement of the victim. She said she feit better the day they called, but the doctors assured her she could not live. The girl realized that she had but a short time to live and she alleged that Freema had inflicted the injuries which had caused her to become ill. Rosa Fisher, whose address was given as 201 East Capitol street, gave the jury the information that she had heard Freeman threaten to kill Mary Wells. Nettie Ford, who lives in the house in Naylor's alley, declared that she had heard Freeman threaten to cut Mary Wells' throat.

Detectives Evans and Muller presented a copy of the woman's ante-mortem statement, and Sorgeont Lude and Pollson. ment, and Sergeant Lyda and Policeman McGrath were present to tell of the arrest. Freeman entered a denial when placed under arrest, but he afterward admitted he had had trouble with the girl. Before being taken to jail Freeman was measured and photographed at police headquarters.

Donald Frothingham of Portland, Me., was in the Police Court today on five charges of larceny, it being alleged that he took four overcoats and a door check, the last-named article belonging to the Willard Hotel. Messrs. Hobart James, Alfred B. Griffin, Albert F. Smith and Selden M. Ely. the complainants, appeared in court, and each identified an overcoat.

Frothingham came here some time ago to secure a government position, but was not successful. In the meantime the police received complaints of the loss of several overcoats. Frothingham was arrested Saturday in Baltimore, while attempting, it is said, to dispose of garments bearing marks of Washington tailors. Detective Boyd went to Baltimore and brought the young man to this city.

The defendant told Judge Kimball this morning that he took the coats in order to raise money to purchase food, and, if possible, purchase a ticket to return to his home in Portland. He also said that he had repented and was sorry. Judge Kimball said there was only one thing for him to do under the evidence. A fine of $30 in each of the coat cases was imposed. In the fifth case the court accepted his personal bonds. Three hundred and sixty days in jail is the default.

Case Sent to Grand Jury.

William Workman, colored, came here about two months ago it is said from North Carolina. Soon after arriving he met a colored man who promised to get him a government position. He first gave the go-between $20 for his services, but he did not get his place, so he claims.

Workman lives at 1906 M street north west. He informed the police of his transaction and yesterday Detectives Pratt and Howlett arrested Joseph H. Maxwell, colored, who was charged with false pretenses in the Police Court today. Workman told Judge Kimball of the dealings he had with the defendant. Maxwell said he secured a position for Workman, but he failed to keep the appointment. The court thought the grand jury ought to investigate the matter and sent the case to that body, holding the defendant in real estate secur-

BROOKS. In remembrance of my beloved father, HENRY BROOKS, who died ten years ago yes-terday—February 2, 1892. BY HIS DAUGHTER GEORGIE.

HUNTER. In loving but sad remembrance of my dear daughter, ALICE HUNTER, who departed this life two years ago today—February 3, 1906.

Two years ago this very day
Our darling daughter was laid away;
But in the graveyard where she sleeps
I know the Lord her soul doth keep.
Home is sad; O, God, how dreary;
Lonesome—lonesome every spot;
I listen for her voice till weary—
Weary, for I hear her not.
